

THE DAILY FINANCE BRIEF

Financial News in Plain English

Saturday, August 15, 2026

Edition No. 36

Personalised for Rishabh Srinivasan

ECONOMY

Federal Reserve Ends Special Oversight of Crypto Banking

The Federal Reserve (the U.S. central bank that controls interest rates) has decided to stop its special supervision program that monitored banks involved in cryptocurrencies and financial technology. This change means that banks will now be observed under regular rules, reflecting the Fed's growing understanding of these new financial activities.

This decision could make it easier for banks to engage in cryptocurrency-related services, potentially leading to more options for consumers. However, it also raises questions about how well these activities will be regulated to protect everyday people from risks associated with digital currencies.

Source: TheStreet

ECONOMY

Treasury Department Looks for Ways to Combat Illegal Activities in Digital Assets

The U.S. Department of the Treasury is seeking public input on new methods to detect and prevent illegal activities involving digital assets, such as cryptocurrencies. This initiative aims to gather ideas on how to combat issues like money laundering (the process of making illegally obtained money appear legitimate) in the digital space.

This news is important as it highlights the government's efforts to ensure that the growing use of digital assets does not facilitate illegal activities that could harm everyday people.

Source: Goodwin Law

BNY Mellon Increases Dividend Payments for Shareholders

The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation has announced that it will increase its quarterly dividend (a payment made to shareholders) to $0.63 per share. This increase comes after the bank reported strong financial results for the second quarter of 2026, indicating its solid performance in managing assets.

For regular people, this news is significant because it reflects the bank's health and its commitment to returning profits to its investors. If you own shares in BNY Mellon, this means you will receive more money from your investment, which can be a positive sign for your personal finances.

Source: ScanX

KeyCorp Declares Cash Dividend for Shareholders

KeyCorp has announced a cash dividend of $0.205 per share on its common shares, which will be paid on September 15, 2026. This payment is for shareholders who own shares as of September 1, 2026. Dividends are a way for companies to distribute some of their profits back to their investors.

This news is relevant to ordinary people who invest in KeyCorp, as receiving dividends can provide additional income. It reflects the company's financial health and commitment to rewarding its shareholders.

Source: PressReach

Citigroup to Fully Redeem Preferred Stock by 2026

Citigroup Inc. has announced that it will fully redeem its Series T Preferred Stock, which is a type of investment that gives shareholders a fixed dividend. The total amount for this redemption is $1.5 billion, and it will take place on August 15, 2026. This move is part of Citigroup's strategy to improve its financial structure.

This news is important for investors in Citigroup, as it indicates the company's efforts to manage its capital effectively. However, it may not have a direct impact on everyday consumers.

Source: StreetInsider

US Financial 15 Split Corp Announces Monthly Dividend

US Financial 15 Split Corp has declared a monthly dividend of $0.07892 per Preferred share, which represents a 10% annual yield based on its previous month's value. This payment will be made on August 10, 2026, to shareholders who own shares as of July 31, 2026.

This news is relevant for investors in US Financial 15 Split Corp, as it indicates the company's commitment to returning profits to its shareholders. However, for the average person, this may not have a significant impact.

Source: Investing.com

Understanding Stablecoins: A Guide for Beginners

A stablecoin is a type of cryptocurrency designed to maintain a stable value by being linked to a reserve asset, such as the U.S. dollar or gold. Stablecoins aim to combine the benefits of digital currencies, like fast transactions and security, with the stability of traditional money.

Recently, discussions have emerged about the potential of stablecoins to reshape the financial landscape, making them an important topic for everyday people to understand as they become more widely used for payments and remittances.

Source: MEXC News

THE DAILY FINANCE BRIEF · Edition No. 36

Generated by AI · Not financial advice

Saturday, August 15, 2026